Says Landlord Reburial of Unknown Soldier in Arlington Favored By Pershing

Burial in Arlington National Cemetery of an unknown American, killed on the battlefields of France, as a symbol of America's participation in the world war, was advocated by General Pershing today before the House Military Affairs Committee.

"Too much cannot be done to honor + he memory of those who lie in France," General Pershing reminded the committee, in suggesting that the United States follow the lead of France and Great Britain in honoring its unknown dead, BACKS FISH RESOLUTION.

'It would be a fitting tribute, no only to the unknown dead, but to al! who gave their lives," General Persh ing said, when asked to give his views on the resolution offered by Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York, authorizing this Government to bring back to America's shores an unnown veteran for honored burial. "We have had no national expression of appreciation of the services of the young men of this country" reminded General Pershing. "I should hink that Arlington National Cemetery would be the best place for bural. I would prefer that to the rounda of the Capitol. The new memorial ampitheater, at Arlington, it seems to me, would be a very appro-

General Pershing requested that the ceremony should be made a national day, with a "silent hour" set aside for all the people. Not only the President of the United States, but the highest officers of the Government should participate in the ceremonies, pression for the services rendered by the nation's soldiers.

General Pershing suggested that a pier by a detchment of soldiers under a general otticer.

AGREES WITH LEJEUNE.

He agreed with Gen, John A. Lecommandant of the Marine Corps, that it would be unwise to select an unknown soldier from any specific branch of the service, or one rom each branch. It was his idea, should be regarded as representing all he forces on both land and sea. Both General Pershing and General ejeune failed to approve a suggestion that an unknown soldier from each State be returned.

Asked if any particular engagement said he, believed it would be preferable to select the unknown body from the Argonne fields, as representing the major engagement of the war.

In connection with the entire plan, the following resolution was today presented to Chairman Julius Kahn. of the Military Affairs Committee, by Truxton Beale, one of the prime movers in the project:

"We are beginning to realize that our great material achievements are not our sole measure of civilizationto realize that civilization is more matter of the heart than of the head, and that sympathy is the raw material from which it is made, If the monument, the solemn rites, and the burial place, proposed in Mr. Fish's resolution will create and keep vivid our sense of the sufferings of others, it will subserve a great public use and a thousand perhaps indirect but nevertheless beneficial effects will come from this one cause. The test of real progress is the rate by which our sympathy for our fellow citizens is strengthening and it is in such ways as the resolution suggests that the soul of goodness in things evil may ome from the sufferings of the
